Notes: Short site visit 21/1/11 noted that:

Clear, cold and frosty day. Black headed gull and mallard noted on the reservoir. Reservoir was noted to be quite low with a drawdown zone of up to 50 meters on the south side, this was seen to be less on the north side as the gradient is steeper. A large are of exposed silt at the western end around the inflow which was visually reminiscent of a tidal/estuarine watercourse.

Inflow next to activity centre on south bank:

Alder next to watercourse surrounded by plantation of larch and pine with bramble and holly. Stony substrate in channel, clear water. Oak and elder also noted along with dilapidated stone wall. Aerial rope course also present in this area. Towards the lower end of this inflow the woodland opens out into Alder Carr and emergent plants appear in channel.

South bank:

Band of plantation woodland along southern bank, giving way to band of reed canary grass, exposed rocky drawdown zone and then open water. With some evidence that this is replanted on a previous woodland site, particularly to the east of the activity centre, e.g. sub veteran oaks interspersed in the plantation along with holly understory. Some of the oaks showed signs of past coppice management and a defunct boundary wall/boundary oaks were observed in this area along with foxglove and wood avens and bramble and honeysuckle. Small watercourses were also noted running down through this area. The woodland to the east of the activity centre is assessed as worthy of further assessment as an extension to the LWS. Native trees also noted along the path side to the west of the activity centre as was bilberry at path edges.

Inflow at western end:

Ochre deposition noted, no aquatic or emergent vegetation in channel, some evidence of scouring in the channel. Surrounding silts would appear to have been exposed over at least the last growing season as dead stems of terrestrial species were noted. Extensive areas of purple loosestrife were noted in this area.

Bank at Eastern end:

Noted to be tightly grazed.

Northern Bank:

Steeper than southern bank with reduced width of drawdown and some exposed south facing shaley vertical faces which may have some potential for an invertebrate interest or for kingfisher or sand martin nesting, no nesting holes were noted however.

A mixture of woodland types was noted on the northern bank, ranging from, spruce plantation at the western end to oak woodland with ancient woodland characteristics, to beech, to willow scrub closer to the reservoir.

Wood sorrel, greater stitchwort, violet spp, honeysuckle, greater woodrush, woodsage, wavy hair grass, heath bedstraw, were noted in the oak and beech woodland areas as were stone lined channels down into the reservoir.

Willow scrub with reed canary grass, yellow flag iris (single patch noted).

Selection criteria: Presence of UK and IBAP habitats (standing water and ancient woodland) and associated supporting features such as plantation woodland fringing the reservoir. May also have a bird and invertebrate interest.

Other: recreational fishing, several noted on NE corner of reservoir on 21/1/11.

Notes:

Additional notes: Recommended that contact should be made with site owners and an extended phase 1 survey undertaken in spring/summer. This should consider if an invertebrate survey targeted at key features such as exposed banks would be worthwhile and if possible assess the woodland to the east of the activity centre on the southern side to assess if this is worthy of inclusion into the LWS. An assessment of the site for its bird interest would also be worthwhile.
