

Dear Stacey White
Ref. Application Nos. 2021/1089 and 1090

My wife and I live at [REDACTED] Barugh Green, and we are worried about the impact of these plans on our quality of life — and have voiced these concerns
many times without any satisfaction.

We live directly behind the proposed boundary separating the new and old properties, and are concerned by the fact that our one story bungalow
will be overlooked by three-story houses.
This is compounded by the fact that the new houses are on a considerable higher ground level than our property
— which will make the over-looking
problem even worse.

Please see below the statement contained
in your letter —

We can only take into account planning matters. For example, this might include the effect of the proposal upon the enjoyment of your home or garden; on the appearance of the surrounding area; and on highway safety. In contrast, we cannot take into account matters such as the effect of the proposal on individual property values, ownership disputes or issues covered by other legislation.

This statement will be directly contravened by the new development, i.e.
the enjoyment of our home and garden —

— with 3-story houses looking straight into our home and garden.

What are you intending to do to alleviate this potential problem? Build a high fence around the boundary? Introduce a larger gap between the new and the old?

I await your comments.

Yours sincerely
