

location plan

SCALE 1:1250

- We had constructed a brick garage and utility room eleven years ago and was told then (by the builder) planning permission of a building this size was not needed
- The problem that this may not be correct only came to light when talking to the proposed builder of the conservatory, who advised us to obtain permission for the conservatory
- If we did need permission for the garage/utility room (or if not) could the building be included in the £150 fee.