Design and Access Statement – Elsecar Heritage Centre, Distillery Side, Elsecar, Barnsley S74 8HJ

The above image represents an ariel view of Elsecar Heritage Centre:

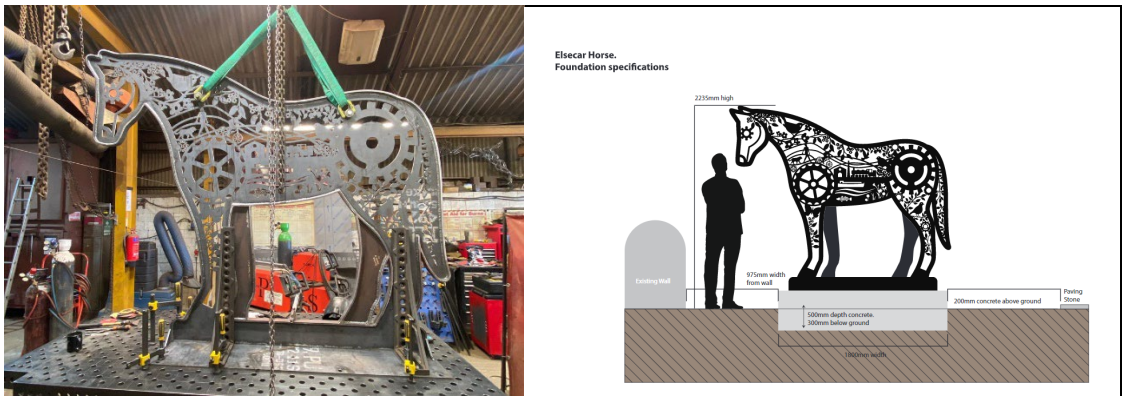

The above image represents where on the ariel view the Horse Sculpture is proposed to be:

Within this area where the Sculpture is proposed to be placed, it is within a conservation area which is protected by Historic England and BMBC. However, where the sculpture is proposed to go it is not within the Scheduled Ancient Monument (SAM) area.

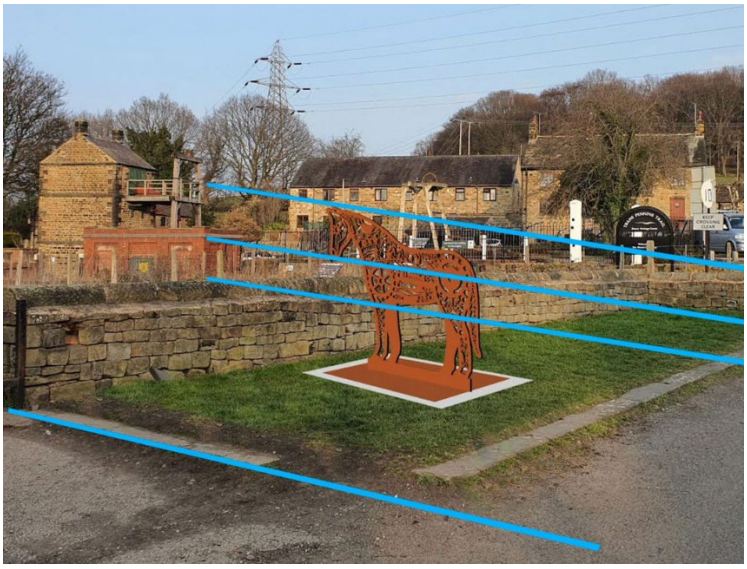

The above image represents the Conservation area (Purple hatching), listed buildings (Targets) and SAM (Red hatching).

Therefore, due to the sculpture being placed in this location there would be no need for Listed Building Consent (LBC) as it does not affect any of the structures. However, to consider the limitations of the design aspect of the sculpture we must factor in the Heritage aspects of the listed buildings nearby and the conservation area which are both protected by Historic England and BMBC. The horse sculpture must not take any value away from the buildings and setting of the area, and so the design of the sculpture is simplistic and is in a way relatable to the heritage in the area, please refer to the Heritage Statement.

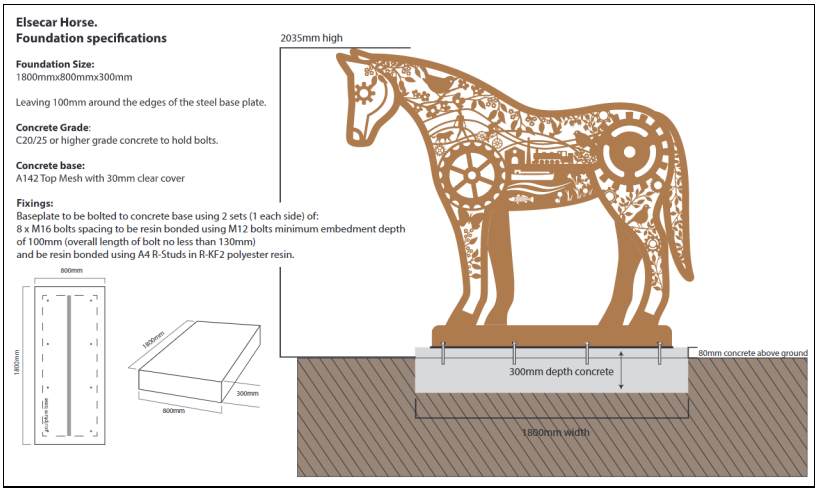

Above are images of the Horse Sculpture made and a representation of the sculpture next to a person:

As you can see from the images above, the dimensions of the sculpture are 2235mm high and 1800mm long and represents the size of a real sized horse.

Above is a computer generated impression of the Sculpture which shows the size of the Sculpture in reality/ situ.

Above is an image of the base of the sculpture which measures 300mm in depth of concrete and 1800mm width. Please refer to the Elsecar Horse Specifications document.

Above are images that represent photos that we took of the surrounding area of where the Horse Sculpture is proposed to go. The red outlines show where the proposed sculpture is going to be placed.

As you can see within the images above the proposed location of the Horse Sculpture, is in proximity with the scheduled ancient monument, and listed buildings, but is within the conservation area. All these factors have been considered within the proposal, and we believe that the sculpture would have minimal impact within the setting of the area.

In conclusion, the Horse Sculpture will not be used for anything other than an artistic benefit for the public. The sculpture will not have any utilities attached as it is not a building; it is only for visual appearance on site and will not provide any negative impact to the heritage in the area. Please refer to the Heritage Statement for the appropriateness of the sculpture.

The horse sculpture could be removed at any time if needed, as it can be unbolted.
