

Existing doors – 64 Wath Road

The existing doors at the property are both made of wood. The front door has two glass panels (a) whilst at the rear of the property the door is fully panelled.

Proposed doors – 64 Wath Road

In-keeping with the surroundings, neighbouring properties and the Elsecar Heritage Centre opposite, we propose two new composite doors which would take on the standard heritage green colour which features throughout the area.

We are keen to keep the glass panels in the front door as without these the living room would be extremely dark. To ensure we are in keeping with the heritage and character of the building we have proposed carrying on the Georgian Bar theme in this cottage style door seen around the village (d).

We would also at the rear of the building like to introduce a glass panel (e), which would open up light into the kitchen, from the back road. This would be in-keeping with neighbouring houses and continue the heritage green at both the public facing side of the property and also at the rear entrance.
