Pinfolds

The name Pinfold is Saxon in origin as "Punfold", meaning an enclosure and is used mostly in the North & East of the country.
Pinfolds are known to date from medieval times and by the 16th century most villages would probably have one. Built to hold animals which had been found straying, they were kept until a fine was paid to the Pinder, an officer of the Lord of the Manor.
Sometimes, for a small fee, the Pinfold would be used by drovers to pen their animals overnight, whilst en route to the Market.
